COLONEL TERRENCE A. FEEHAN

Colonel Terrence A. (Terry) Feehan is commander of the 377th Air Base Wing, Kirtland AFB, New Mexico. The wing provides munitions maintenance, readiness, and base operating support for the sixth largest installation in the Air Force. Among key wing activities are the operation of two munitions maintenance and storage complexes (at Kirtland AFB and Nellis AFB, Nevada) and hosting over 100 associate units, including the Air Force Operational Test & Evaluation Center, Air Force Safety Center, Air Force Inspection Agency, Defense Threat Reduction Agency, Air Force Research Laboratory, 58th Special Operations Wing, U.S. Department of Energy, National Nuclear Security Administration, and Sandia National Laboratories.

Colonel Feehan received his commission as a distinguished graduate of the United States Air Force Academy in 1984. He has previously commanded at the squadron and group levels and most recently as the F-15 Fighter's Materiel Wing Director. In this capacity he was responsible for "cradle-to-grave" operations of the entire F-15 weapon system. Col Feehan has also served as an engineer, acquisition program manager, and inspector general, and at the major command and headquarters Air Force levels.

Col Feehan was one of only seven officers from across the Department of Defense to attend Senior Service School as a Secretary of Defense Fellow. In that capacity, he served with Accenture Corporation, Northbrook IL, and was tasked to identify and harness best business practices for use within the Department.
